A Day to Defend Public Education: The Cost of Cuts at UVM

Thursday, October 7, 4-5:30 pm
John Dewey Lounge, Old Mill

In recognition of the October 7 nationwide Day to Defend Public Education, United Academics—the union representing University of Vermont faculty—invites faculty, students, staff, and concerned community members to join us for an urgent discussion:

- What is the cost of UVM administrative decisions to increase the number of students while shrinking faculty and staff?
- What is the cost of heavier workloads for fewer faculty and staff? Of higher tuition and greater debt for students?
- As the share of UVM's budget for academics, academic support, and building maintenance shrinks, where is the money going? And what can we do?
